

Maternity Services

We understand that you may be experiencing a lot of worry and concern, but we are here to help you in many ways. We provide private, confidential counseling to help you make a decision. You will never be coerced or forced to make a decision that you are not comfortable making. PCHAS provides a safe, non-judgmental support system for prospective birth parents considering an adoption plan.

We will help you dispel the myths surrounding adoption and explain the legal process. We are able to offer financial support services based on your needs and within the scope of our work. We will help you find medical care if you do not already have a provider. Most importantly, we will guide you through the decision making process and help you choose an adoptive family should you decide that is the best option for your child.

Support Through the Process

Counseling begins the moment you contact us. We are ready to answer any questions you may have. If you would like to discuss adoption, we will walk you through the process. This journey to finding a family is accompanied by counseling services provided to birth parents and adoptive families. By understanding all of the options available to you, you will be able to make an informed decision and identify what is important to you about an adoptive family. You will have access to family profiles and be confident knowing that each family has been carefully screened by PCHAS.

Your PCHAS counselor will be available to you before, during and after an adoption.

Openness in Adoption

Openness in adoption is the opportunity for birth parents to choose the adoptive family for their child and to continue contact with them and the child through phone calls, visits, pictures, letters and/or videos. The type of contact may vary from family to family, but the primary goal is to keep everyone connected.

As a maternity client, you are our priority. Once you have found an adoptive family you would like to meet, you will have the opportunity to get to know them with a “match meeting” facilitated by a PCHAS maternity and adoption specialist. Your maternity and adoption specialist will be present to mediate this exciting occasion and will always advocate for your wishes, concerns and needs. This initial contact allows you and the adoptive family to begin exploring the type of open adoption you would like to pursue.
